KeyLeader®

Change a life.

You meet them every day.
Young people with potential.

With promise. You can tell they'd excel if they were given the opportunity—the chance to be noticed, to be part of something important, to lead.

Now you have something to offer them: A Key Leader weekend for emerging leaders. Key Leader weekends take place across the United States—and around the world. In three action-packed days, high school students from diverse backgrounds come together to learn about themselves and each other. They build self confidence through experiences from workshops to ropes courses. They work with others to create a sense of community. And they learn what true leadership is all about—helping others succeed.

As an educator, you can be part of the experience.
It just might change your life, too.

Key Leader weekends get teens up, out, and moving.

Teens discover who they are and who they can become. Tomorrow's leaders.

Here's how you can get involved in Key Leader.

Spread the word.

Let promising young people in your school, school district, and community know about Key Leader. Students ages 14 to 18 from all organizations in high school can take part and hone their leadership skills.

Nominate a student.

Focus on one or two students and nominate them for the program. Let the students—and their parents—know why you think they'd benefit from team building, personal development, and leadership training.

Find funding.

The price for a Key Leader weekend is US$175. Could your school offer a scholarship for a student? Could a local service organization provide funding? Key Leader is a Kiwanis-family program. It's not necessary to be affiliated with Kiwanis to take part, although many Kiwanis clubs provide financial support for Key Leader students. Go to www.kiwanis.org and click "Find a club" to locate a Kiwanis Club near you. Reach out!

Sign up.

Check out Key Leader's latest calendar of events at www.key-leader.org and help a student register for the program.

My favorite part of the weekend is watching my students reach their full potential and blossom as leaders. Kiwanis Key Leader changes lives.”
